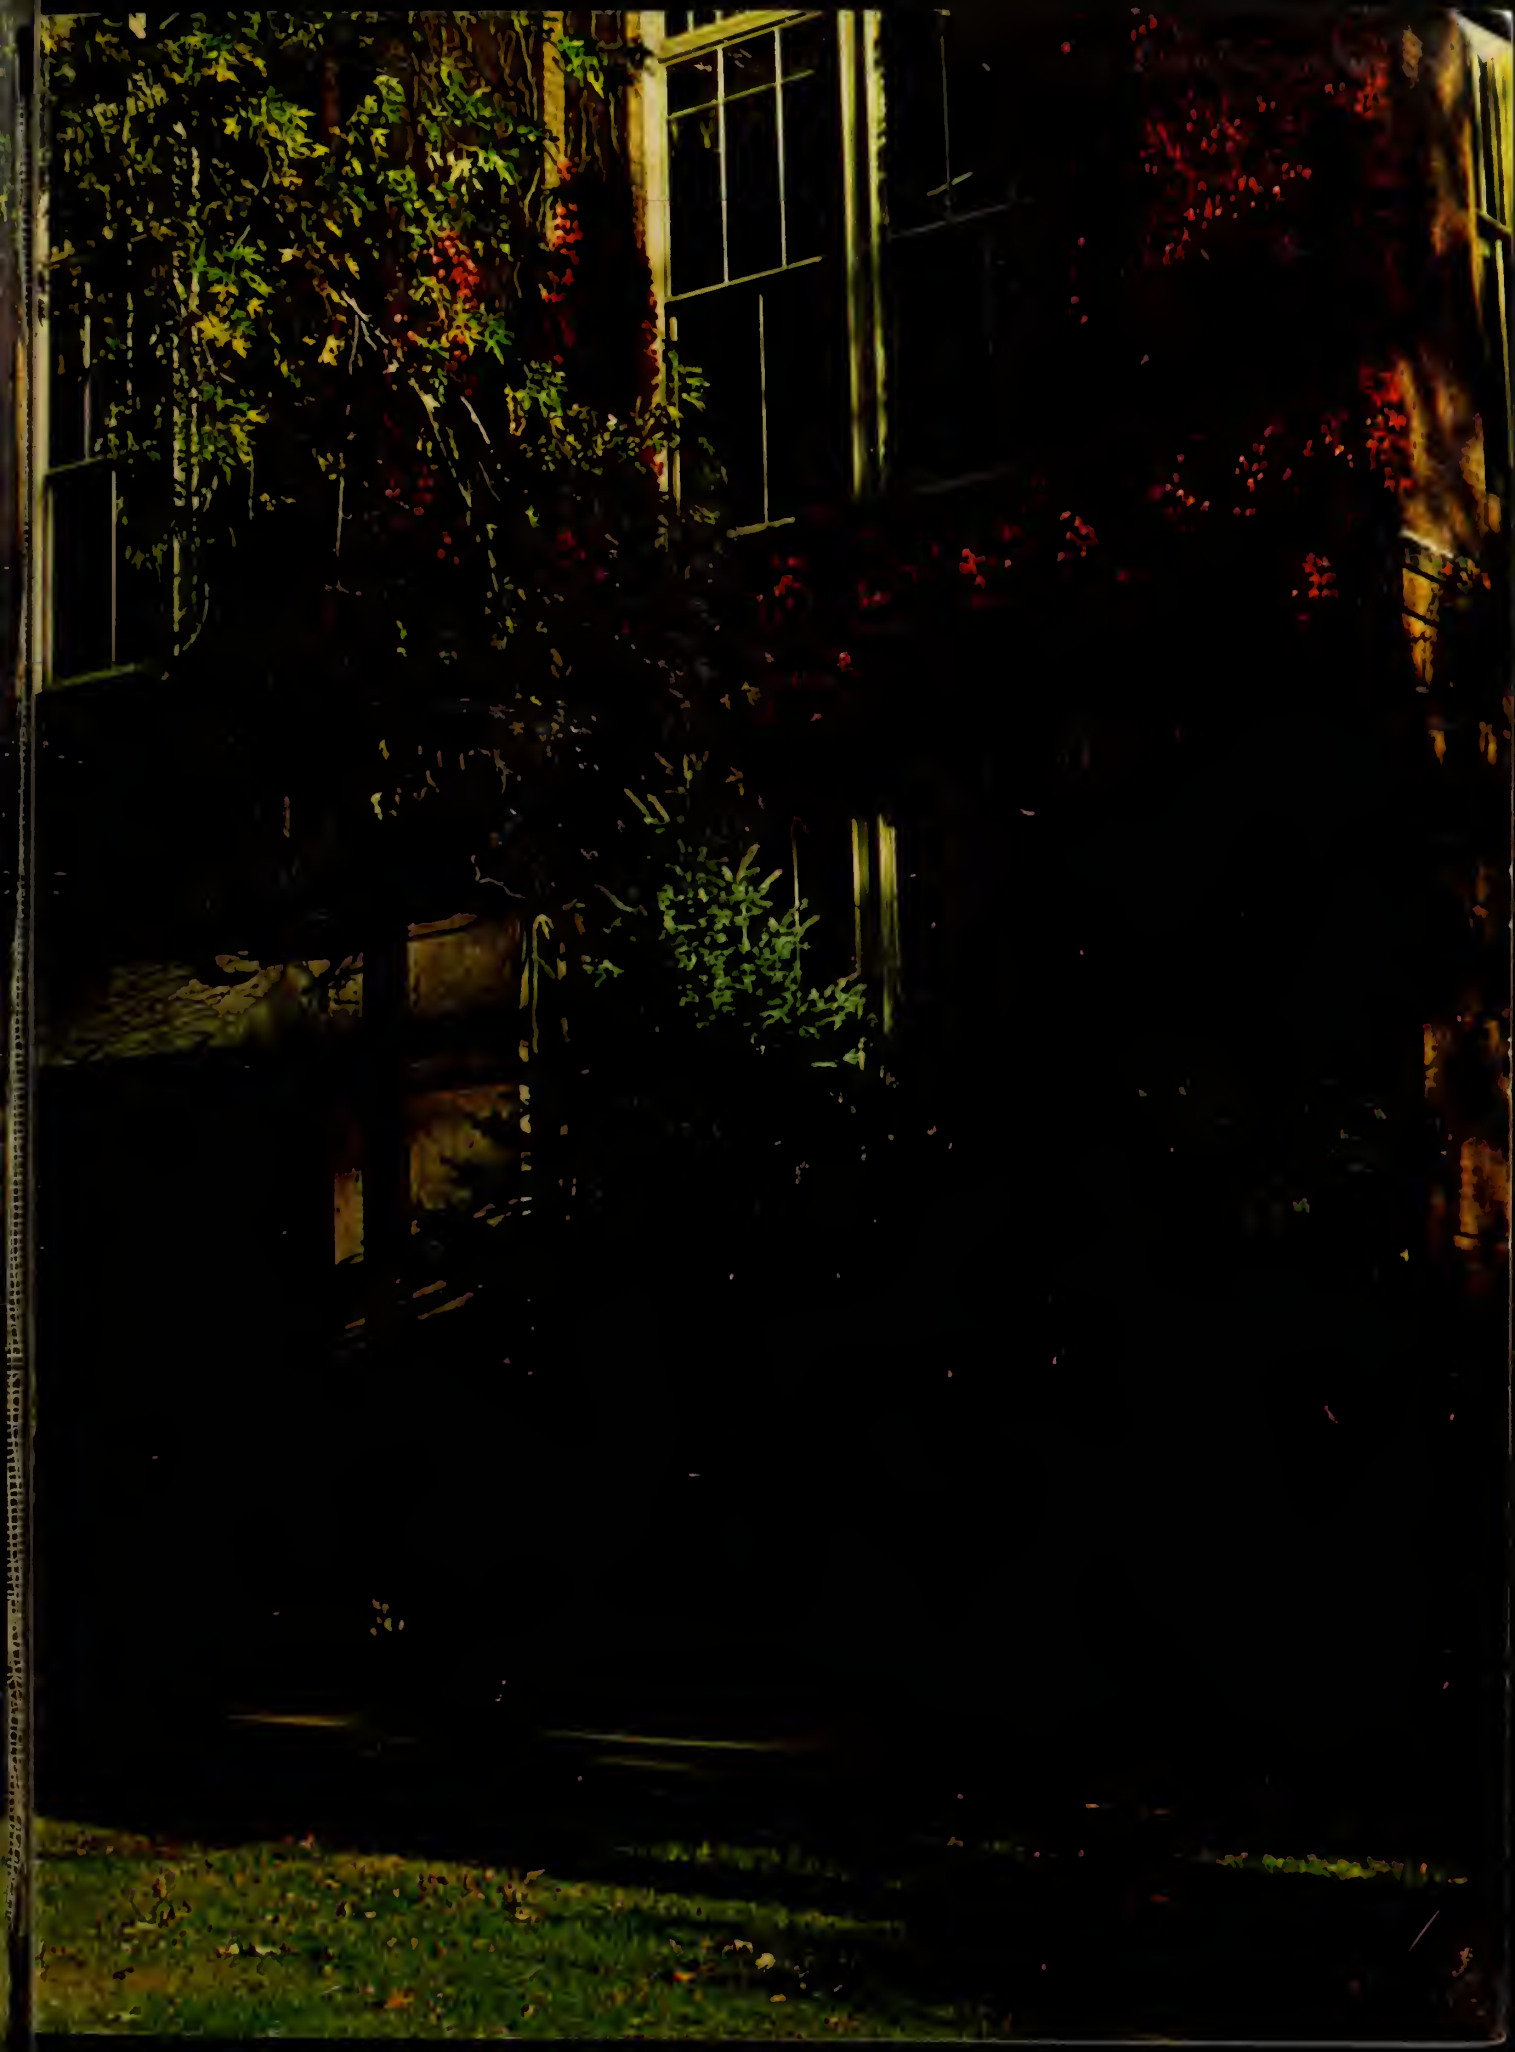
Donna Patten



i
am a person
i think
who am i?
and wonder
i have feelings—
laugh, cry,
i
and to be alone
at times together
this is i
in many forms
i exist
my world
a microcosm
of i's°. . .
to be a person
to endure
to wander
i am
what my life
makes me
i am
i will be

John Fitzgerald Kennedy 1917 - 1963

He was A Man.

He was a man with a deep faith in humanity.

The records of his accomplishments will be inscribed In histories.
The memory of his belief in man will continue As long as there is a nature.

He was the spirit of my generation.

And to this man,
John Fitzgerald Kennedy,
I dedicate
The journal of my days
As a monument to his greatness.

Mr. Arthur E. Burke —
our Superintendent . . .
his task in our school system is over-whelming
i
seldom realize his stature — a recognized civic and community leader . .
i
rarely see him —
a shame
i don't know him better but — he has his job . . . and i —
mine.

Being
A man
who sees value in me
and i in him a source—
the teacher of worth, aim
dignity in me—
the spirit of youth that not even i supersede—the right pride, the right humility of inspiration—
and
guiding, heartening
my private world,
my future,
Mr. George F. Wrightson
will endure
in my memory.

as a senior
i came to her . . .
seeking advice and encouragement . . .
her respected judgement and ability to understand, places her in select company . . .
stern when necessary —
eager to be helpful . . .
to Miss Olive Little i am indebted . . .

a dark stage - a curtain opening a maid, a beginning emerge - a family
a family, unreal
existing between performances

confusion - more characters one butler, one prizefighter cheeks flushed -
we're on our way

The Cavendishes - a family struggling to keep together Fanny, the mother
faded, spirited, dominant Julie, the daughter now - what her mother was once - in love - with someone apart someone who can never be Tony, the non-conforming son escaping - perpetually without fear, for life is short
Gwen, Julie's child
naive, magical
the one who breaks apart Dean, the egotist Wolfe, the Cavendish organizer and Kitty, Marshall, Perry Miss Peake, the hallboys Gunga

Makeup streaked with tears after the very first act the student director
trying to keep calm
to overcome
we smiled, for we had roses to give her

And the play continued in spite of
ad libs - forgotten eggnog and each felt so close to each other

We determined
we played our hearts out - to that unknowing audience, and lived for their applause rejuvenated
by a successful joke
two nights
looking toward the wings for acceptance, approval

and then it was over the family -
prevailing
and we bowed, and gave flowers and
cried

and
the stage was dark
once again

"what is lovely never dies, but passes into other lovliness."

i
now history,
remain only in record
my sounds of permanence:
an ivy
my song —
exposition of my thoughts and memories
left to endure . . .

I

i entered a school.
as its hugeness overwhelmed me i realized
i was gladly received here (Freshmen Welcome) i began to feel secure and in my security
i worked and hoped and laughed—i grew.

III

i maturing
participating
working (officers)
and laughing
with others.
searching for a place in society—
art (Junior Prize Speaking) dancing (Junior Prom)
trying to
"know myself"
failure
success
the true value
was in the attempt,
the effort.

II

i ascended.
an upperclassman!
arrogance
laughter
innate humility
reserve
the emergence of leaders (officers) and the first class activities (Sophomore Social) a prosperous year!

IV

i
a duality
of joy and sorrow.
i
with seniority
respected by underclassmen.
outspoken (Netop)
ambitious (Pro Merito)
directing (officers)
reminiscent (Yearbook)
i
struggling for individuality identity
a sense of accomplishment (Senior Play) anxious to step into the future yet wary of leaving (Senior Farewell) the security
that a Freshman found
four years earlier.

i am an end —
a sadness clothed in mist.
i am a memory —
warm and childlike in its tenacity.

i am a beginning —
a life in its entirety.
i am a hope —
in an unknown and unknowing world.
